Core Curriculum Council
1 May 2001

The Core Curriculum Council recommends that the following course be added to the list of courses approved to satisfy the computer usage requirement.

VAPH 420 Computer Applications in Public Health Research. (3-0) Credit 3. I, II
Introduction to the use of computers for public health research applications, including work processing, spreadsheets, data base management and telecommunications.

In this case the CCC unanimously agreed that an exposure to the computer as a tool and proficiency in its applied use were central to course content and character appropriate to this category of graduation requirements and, thus, justified the course being included in the category.
